MOUNTING FREE REIN TOURS

Folks from all over Orange County have begun discovering Huntington Beach's hidden gems on Free Rein Ecotours, introduced in February. The 90-minute to 2-hour tour encompasses meeting Free Rein's rescued horses and mustangs in the pasture; learning about Free Rein's unique non-riding therapy and learning programs benefiting children and adults; touring the impressive Huntington Central Park Equestrian Center; and walking through the neighboring Urban Forest, where more than 7,500 plants and trees have already been added to enhance habitat for native birds and animals.

The tours, led by volunteer docents, spur support for Free Rein Foundation's non-profit mission of rescuing horses and healing humans. To learn more, please visit freereintours.com.

HUG & GROOMS ARE BACK!

Back by popular demand after a year-long pandemic hiatus, Free Rein is delighted to welcome the community to Hug & Groom events, the first Sunday of each month from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"We have so many creative, energetic volunteers involved that my job has been easy," says new Hug & Groom Manager Ralph Orsino. "This is such a great event for families, and sessions are already booking quickly. It's also fund-worthy endeavor, with all proceeds going to the care and feeding of Free Rein's rescues."

Advanced registration is required and limited. Guest will stay six feet apart, but zero feet from horses! Learn more at freereinfoundation.org/events.

More "Mane Events" appear on the back.

MEET DR. GABI GROSS, HORSE HEALTH COACH

Natural Equine Health Coach and retired veterinarian Dr. Gabi Gross has worked wonders with Free Rein horses' feeding, management and behavioral adjustments. Most recently, retired jumper Winston had been lethargic and thin, no matter how much hay he was given. After just a couple of weeks on a new, Dr. Gabi-recommended diet regimen, Winnie has perked up and is noticeably putting on weight.

Not only has Dr. Gabi donated much of her time to the care of the Free Rein herd; she's also held two information-packed symposiums in the pasture this year for equine enthusiasts, with all proceeds going to Free Rein Foundation.

NEW: Free Rein Merchandise, Available Online

By purchasing Free Rein merchandise, you'll be sporting a great look while supporting a great cause. Plus, wearing Free Rein gear can be a conversation-starter about our non-profit mission of rescuing horses and humans.

Check out the high-quality men's and women's short- and long-sleeved T-shirts, trucker hats and masks at freereinfoundation.org/shop.

PEN PALS: Wishing Free Reiners a Fond Farewell

Free Rein family member Rocky Gerber is heading for green pastures in Tennessee with her family of three adopted horses: Rocky the horse, a movie star, who's last starring role was in "Cowboys and Aliens," and Duke and Summit, both rescued mustangs born in the Black Hills of South Dakota who came to Huntington Beach in 2019 as two-year-olds.

While it's bittersweet to bid goodbye to these cherished Free Rein family members, we are excited for them and wish them happy trails on their journeys.

Rocky is gentling Summit, formerly known as Pedro. She's heading to Tennessee with three horses.
